Mail Collection Box Relocated

The Mail Collection Box formerly located on Main Street is being moved to the front of the Post Office.

On September 30 the Appomattox Post Office and other associate offices under the Lynchburg Sectional Center, will no longer cancel and distribute outgoing mail. This mail processing operation will be handled at the special center facility.

In order to avoid delay in delivery of local mail it is very important that customers separate local and out of town mail.

Therefore, two collection boxes will be located in front of the Post Office marked (Appomattox Mail Only) and (Out of Town Mail).

Mail taken from the (Out of Town) box will not be checked before dispatch. Appomattox mail deposited in that box will be sent to Lynchburg and returned to Appomattox on the next trip.

Out-of-town mail on which sender requests an Appomattox postmark should be given to clerk at the window rather than deposited in the box outside or the letter drop inside the lobby.

Customers who would like more information about this new procedure are invited to call or come by the Post Office at any time.

Program Begins at 1:00 P. M.

A stone marker designating the birthplace and gravesite of Joe Sweeney, the inventor of the five-string banjo, will be unveiled during ceremonies here on Saturday, September 23rd.

The program will begin at 1:00 p.m. at the Appomattox River Wayside on Route 24, adjacent to the Appomattox Court House National Historical Park with radio station WFLO broadcasting. Henry Fulcher, of WFLO, will be Master of Ceremonies, and the program will feature country music and banjo picking.

The formal program is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m., when W. M. Abbitt, Member of the House of Representatives, will introduce the guest speaker, Charles S. Marshall, Director of the Virginia State Office of the National Park Service.

Charles S. Marshall was born in 1912 at The Plains, Fauquier County, Virginia, and graduated from Marshall Virginia High School in 1928. He attended the College of William and Mary where he received his A. B. and Law degrees.

He joined the National Park Service upon completion of Law School in 1933 and has been in their service ever since. Before coming to the Regional Office as historian, Marshall served as assistant superintendent and superintendent in a number of eastern parks including Colonial National Park, Yorktown, Virginia Shiloh National Military Park, Tennessee; Morristown National Historical Park, New Jersey, Statue of Liberty National Monument, New York; Guilford Court House National Military Park, North Carolina; and Cape Hatteras National Seashore, North Carolina, where he was privileged to acquire the land on the Outer Banks of North Carolina.

Returning to the Regional Office in 1963, Marshall served in various capacities in the Regional Office, reaching the rank of Associate Regional Director which office he held when the Regional Office was moved from Richmond to Atlanta in 1972. At that time he was designated Director of the Virginia State Office and holds that position now. This position involves direct supervision of nine Virginia areas including Appomattox Court House National Historical Park. In 1965, he was awarded the Interior Department Meritorious Service Award by former secretary Stewart Udall, this is the second highest award issued by the Interior Department to its employees.

Joe Walker Sweeney was born in a small house near the Park site in Appomattox in 1810 and is credited with making the first five-string banjo with the skin from a family cat - patterning it after a gourd instrument that he had seen area slaves playing. He and his two brothers became well-known musicians, originating the minstrel art and traveling to many parts of the world. He died in 1860 and is buried in the family plot, his gravesite modestly marked.

According to W. W. Blythe, President of the Appomattox County Chamber of Commerce, the marker was paid for by donations sent in, the approximate cost was $250.00.

All citizens of Appomattox and surrounding counties are urged to attend the ceremonies on Saturday, September 23rd.
